

U.S. citizens will leave Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked citizens working in Libya to come home Thursday to them from becoming pawns in any showdown with radical Arab state. The government said 1,500 U.S. citizens, many of them oil technicians, stand in "imminent peril."

The State Department also banned travel to Libya by citizens.

Libya border guards alerted to be on the lookout for Libyan assassins sought trying to infiltrate this city, officials implied that Thursday's decisions were first moves in a cold war with the Libyan strongman Muammar Khadaffi.

The government still is considering an embargo against Libya, which supplies about 4 percent of U.S. oil, according to officials who spoke privately.

The steps taken early today by President Reagan are in response to the problem of Libyan lawlessness," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters in Brussels.

Haig added, "I don't rule out potential further steps, but the actions taken are justified by the prevailing circumstances."

Deputy Secretary of State William Clark announced the moves, but refused to link them to the administration's belief that Khadaffi has sent an assassination squad to this continent to kill Reagan or other top government officials in retaliation for the American downing of two Libyan MiGs Aug. 19.

Reagan said Monday he had evidence of the assassination plot, but none has been made public. Clark said the steps were taken in view of the overall pattern of Libyan behavior over the past six months.

Border guards were told to watch for two assassin squads intent on killing Reagan and other top officials.

Reagan's budget hopes to cut deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's budget hopes to push the federal deficit to less than $70 billion in 1983 and $40 billion or less in 1984, and are allowing tax increases to get there, administration officials said Thursday.

Four new revenues might come from withholding taxes on interest and dividends income, imported oil fees, taxes on employer-paid health insurance benefits and a windfall tax on overregulated natural gas, administration officials said.

A source said the administration is looking at plans to $80 billion to $85 billion in 1983 and in 1984 to reduce a $10 billion projected at more than $150 billion in 1984, but a significant increase from the $22 billion in now increases through 1984 that President Reagan proposed in September.

It means whose hallmark has been to cut taxes, in the administration's most reluctant backer of tax cuts, despite his desire to reduce ballooning deficits.

As a result, the sources cautioned that the proposals under study by Reagan's senior aides cannot be assured of winning presidential approval.

Reagan also has been reluctant to make significant cuts in his record defense budget plans, despite such urgings from budget director David A. Stockman and other advisers.

The sources, asking that their names not be used, also declined to widely publicized deficit figures prepared a week ago already have been revised downward, though they still point a bleak budget outlook.

Referring to the sources, Stockman told Reagan earlier this week that without more budget cuts or tax increases, the deficit will surge to $107.5 billion in fiscal 1982, $147.9 billion in 1983 and $182.4 billion in 1984.

The earlier estimates showed deficits of $109.1 billion for the current fiscal year, $102.3 billion for 1983 and $162 billion for 1984. Fiscal 1982 began in October.

Cities' Nativity displays subject of legal dispute

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rhode Island must town to town Thursday hoping to save the city display it has erected every year since 1945. The town is in a series of legal battles over nativity displays on public property.

Protesters have surfaced in the city, and the town has used city workers to erect and maintain it in the city of Providence.

Nativity scenes in the South in the Capitol grounds, on the South shore, Conn., Town Hall lawn and a creche in Denver.

In some, the displays violate the constitutional separation of church and state. But others see the manger scene as harmless holiday expression that one governor calls "part of the American scene."

... like Barbie Dolls."

Fawcett, R.I., wants an appeals court in Boston to block the judge's order that forbids the town from setting up its display in a privately owned park. The community of Pawtucket had overruled the town's order, and the city workers returned to the city and the money refunded, said William F. McMahon, a lawyer for the city.

The committee set up the creche last week alongside city-owned secular displays in the park. The ACLU has asked the district judge to hold the city in contempt of court.

He later refused to stay his order.

Fawcett then said the display for 1982 to the Citizens Committee to End the Christmas Wars. The committee said that if the appeals court ruled that the display was unconstitutional, the city would be required to return to the city and the money refunded, said William F. McMahon, a lawyer for the city.

Kilmer Rounly, spokesman for a group of Provo citizens opposing the construction of the north end zone of Cougar Stadium, speaks before the Provo Adjustments Board. Rounly and his group were unsuccessful in convincing the board to halt the construction. Excavation and demolition work is already underway on Cougar Stadium expansion and some of it will be finished this December.

Stadium expansion obstacle gone

The proposed Cougar Stadium expansion overcame another obstacle Thursday night when the Provo Adjustments Board denied an appeal by Provo residents to halt construction of the north end zone.

Provo residents and BYU officials who attended the meeting expressed feelings, pro and con, about the north end-zone construction.

"Our appeal is based on the impact that the project will have on our neighborhood," said Kilmer Rounly, spokesman for residents opposed to the construction.

"The four main areas we are concerned with are loss of view, the unattractive wall that will exist, the added impact of traffic congestion and the additional shading in the area," he said.

Residents said the north end-zone section, which will extend 62 feet above the playing field, would destroy the aesthetic value of their homes.

Eric Erickson, Pleasant View neighborhood representative, said, "That steel skeleton would be a go-ahead thing to look at every day. It would be like a giant chicken coop."

Norman Caldwell, BYU architectural representative, told Erickson BYU had made every effort available to soften the impact of the stadium on the neighborhood.

BYU Executive Vice President W. Rolf Kerr said BYU is very concerned about what happens to its neighbors.

"We're faced with a problem. The stadium is there and the demand is there. There needs to be met," Kerr said.

BYU has offered to buy neighboring property at market value, he said. "I don't know what else we could have done."

Rounly said if his group decides to make another appeal it will be in district court.

Some stadium neighborhood residents said they were not opposed to the proposed expansion.

Merrill Osmond named director of family's production studios

By CARRI PHIPPEN Staff Writer

In a non-financial agreement, Merrill Osmond has become the director of Osmond Studios, said Jerry McPhie, president of the Osmond Studios.

The position given to Merrill was just a matter of reassignment," McPhie said. "Each one of the Osmond family members has been assigned some portion of Osmond Enterprises, and that position will now be Merrill's responsibility."

In the past, the Osmond brothers have jointly managed the studio.

McPhie said despite recent rumors, the Osmonds are not selling the Provostate. He did say, however, that several people have contacted Osmond Studios, and discussions have taken place about allowing private individuals to buy interests in the studio.

Financial expert Howard Ruff has been rumored to be buying parts of the Osmond studio. McPhie said he would not rule out the possibility that in the future Ruff could buy an interest in the studio, but no business of any kind is being conducted now.

McPhie and Karl Engleman, executive vice president of Osmond Enterprises, said there were two reasons for the change in responsibility. Other members of the family are too busy right now to manage the studio, he said.

Osmond will be leaving in January to act for five months on Broadway. Marie and Jimmy will also be busy during the next months with record releases and movie and television productions. Engleman added that Jimmy has just returned from a tour in Japan, where he was the first member of the Osmond family to release a pop record there.

He has also just completed a episode with the television comedy "Love Boat" and has been in- scribed to act in several other TV series, Engleman said.

Jimmy Osmond will be attending BYU winter semester, Engleman said, and "so will not have much time between performances and his class work."

Other family members who are helping to direct the Osmond Enterprises are Alan and Wayne Osmond. Alan is in charge of all movie productions and live entertainment performances, McPhie said.

Wayne, he said, "is involved with the business end of the deal, handling much of the business negotiations for the family."

The second reason the studio is being put under Merrill's responsibility is that it directly involves what he is interested in, Engleman said.

"The studio has always been one of Merrill's main interests, and he is very good at it. Merrill knows a lot of people that he can contact — he just knows this end of the business," he said.

Although no major changes have been initiated by Merrill's assignment at the studio, there are a few developments that will take place, McPhie said.

Monte L. Bean Museum has a unique Christmas tree this year. Natural ornaments have allowed the museum to fill the 11-foot tree with specimens of animals and birds native to Utah. Most of the ornaments are on the tree and are attached to the branches by wires inserted in their claws. The tree will be on display until the first of the year during the museum's regular hours.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — While progress in U.S.-Soviet arms talks is being made, it is too early to predict there will be an agreement in time to forbid planned deployment of American missiles in Europe, the chief U.S. negotiator told the NATO allies Thursday.

Paul H. Nitz, top foreign ministers from 15 NATO countries that "both sides were getting down to real issues in the negotiations" that opened Nov. 30 in Geneva, a senior U.S. official said.

Nitz flew here to provide a progress report on the talks with the Soviet Union. The United States wants NATO to endorse the U.S. negotiating position and also to reaffirm NATO's decision to go ahead with deployment of 672 U.S. missiles, beginning in 1982, if there isn't an agreement.

The senior official, who requested anonymity, said that following Nitz's remarks to a closed session, the NATO foreign ministers praised the U.S. effort in the Geneva negotiations.

"Ambassador Nitz was able to report that the negotiations have been undertaken in a very serious vein and... the atmosphere between the two delegations has been a very positive one," said the official.

Sources and spokesmen for several other delegations indicated they were generally pleased with what Nitz reported.

One conference source who didn't want to be identified quoted Nitz as saying the Soviet position in the first 10 days of the negotiations had not changed. The U.S. position, a "zero option" favoring a ban on all nuclear missiles in the European area, also apparently had not changed either.

Lothar Rahl, spokesman for the West German Foreign Ministry, said his delegation was pleased the talks were focusing on matters of substance.

MacGilligan, the Canadian foreign minister, told reporters, "It's quite clear to us from what Mr. Nitz said the United States is very serious in these arms control negotiations."

A source in the British delegation was quoted as saying Nitz's report was "not unencouraging."

Nitz's appearance was part of a U.S. tour on several fronts to bolster European resolve to go forward with deploying the nuclear missiles — if there is not an agreement — to confront Soviet missiles which are already in place.

The U.S. delegation, headed by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., wants the NATO committee, which will be issued at Friday's close, to declare that deployment along with negotiations "are important and the deployment's scheduled time in 1983, in the absence of an agreement, will go forward."

ASBYU has an obligation to students to take an objective look at its effectiveness, Haws said.

All students are invited to participate to find out what's wrong, what's right, and what can be changed in ASBYU government, Haws said.

The convention will examine the possibility of a student congress and new constitution, along with questioning the current check-andbalance system of ASBYU.

"We're going into this with no preconceived notions. We're open and ready to make changes if

A question/answer panel, consisting of ASBYU officers, will also be included, Bigger added.

Each of the current constitution's articles will be examined for the possibility of changes, he said.

Y faces Bengals in Cougar Classic

By ROBES PATTON
Staff Writer

porting the worst record of the 11 teams entered, BYU will attempt to win its fourth straight Cougar Classic today and Saturday.

The Cougars' 9-5 mark is well below the records posted by Western Illinois, Idaho State and LaSalle, although BYU's schedule has a little rougher.

Western Carolina Catamounts 4-0; the Idaho State Bengals, 3-0; the LaSalle Explorers are 3-1. The Cougars' record is deceiving, they have been somewhat flat since dynamite beginning in Southern Utah. BYU lost two at home, to Oregon State and Nevada-Las Vegas, and lost an inferior Utah State team today in Logan.

The Cougars will face Idaho State again at 9 p.m. The Bengals have four returning starters from last season's 12-14 win.

Head coach Terry Goddard and Robert E. along with forwards Dale Wilson and Byron Williams are back on the team for the Bengals. Williams, a 6-5, 190-pound forward, has an honorable mention Big Conference selection. He is the Bengals leading scorer (18.5 p.p.g.).

He is averaging 11.3 points a game and Goddard has dishied out 18 pts in three games.

Point guard Goddard directs an offense that has beaten the likes of stern Montana, Westminster and La Clara.

Two Bengal forwards, Williams and Ben Atkins, measure under 6-6.

The size advantage, as usual, will be the Cougars' favor.

Head coach Frank Arnold downplayed any height bonus, however.

"Height is an advantage only as long as the team is as quick, mobile, agile and hostile as the opposition," Arnold said.

Steve Trumbo leads BYU in scoring and rebounding with 13.3 and 5.0 respectively per game averages.

The scoring mark is deceiving, however, as Trumbo hasn't been himself the last several games.

Forward Fred Roberts and center Greg Kite complete what is possibly the best front line in the nation.

"BYU has a huge front line," Idaho State head coach Lynn Archibald said.

"They're a physical team with a lot of experience. It's important for us to control the tempo, stay with them rebounding, and take good shots within the frame of the offense," he added.

Forward Gary Purnell will miss five to 10 days with a knee injury suffered Tuesday in Logan.

Western Carolina invades Provo averaging 95 points a game.

The Catamounts are led by 6-2 forward Greg Dennis, averaging 22.5 points a game, and guard Ronnie Carr, with a 22 p.p.g. average.

Sophomore forward Tai Sharp hasn't missed a shot in the four Western Carolina matchups.

The Catamounts are considered to be a "keeper" this year in NCAA action.

Western Carolina meets LaSalle in the first game today.

LaSalle comes to Provo with a 7-1 center, Tom Piotrowski, and the memory of the 108-106 triple-overtime loss to BYU in the final game of the 1979 Cougar Classic.

The Explorers' only blemish is a 61-55 loss at Duke.

In its victory over Delaware, LaSalle was spotted by two freshman, Steve Black and Albert Butts.

Wrestlers to compete in Beehive

The BYU wrestling team will compete against seven universities in this week's Beehive Invitational at the Sun Devil Invitational in Tempe, Ariz., with eight wrestlers placed in 10 competitors, but Davis is optimistic the team will do better this weekend.

"We're in good shape," he said. "We're planning on winning it."

Sage State will be the team to beat, said Davis. "They beat us last year, but we ranked 25th this year. Utah State has also put together a strong team."

BYU will compete against Boise State, Weber State, U.S.U., San Jose State, N.C. State, and UNLV, but in the Sun Devil Invitational the Cougars finished ahead of U.S.U., UNLV and Weber State, Davis said.

"We had two in the finals, Chris Taylor, 128 pounds, and Terry Hatt, 167, but they both lost to defending national champions," he said.

Ainge scores 1st NBA hoop

BOSTON (AP) — Danny Ainge remembers his first major league hit with the Toronto Blue Jays. He hopes he'll soon forget his first basket with the Boston Celtics.

The 1981 BYU All-American, who decided to switch pro careers after battling only 188 for Toronto this year, made his National Basketball Association debut Wednesday night, less than two weeks after signing with the Celtics.

With veteran guard Steve Archibald sidelined by flu, Ainge got to play 10½ minutes in Boston's 109-100 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

After missing on his first three shots, and having another failure nullified by a whistle, Ainge hit on a 12-foot jump shot. He was given a standing ovation by a packed crowd of 15,320.

"Sure, I remember my first major league hit," Ainge, 22, said. "In fact, I had three in my first game for Toronto in 1978. But I remember my first hit because I didn't get too many of them afterward."

"I hope I won't remember my first basket here. It was a big thrill, but I hope there's many more baskets coming — and many more exciting ones than tonight."

Ainge said that the fans "made me feel comfortable" and he didn't feel nervous "although I was a little uncomfortable on offense."

"It was good to get this game out of the way," Ainge said. "Even now I'm not sure what Coach Bill Walton wants from me, but that will come with playing time."

Fitch said, "That was a beginning. He's going to be a good player. It was good to get him acclimated now because when they get back, the playing minutes will be few and far between."

The Celtics surprised the NBA by drafting Ainge in the second round, the 31st player chosen overall, last June. At the time, Ainge was insisting he would honor a baseball contract with Toronto for two more years.

However, the Celtics reached a financial agreement with the Blue Jays and signed Ainge on Nov. 27. Before activating him, however, they had to trim the 12-man roster, selling former Notre Dame star Tracy Jackson, their second draft pick and 25th player overall, to the Chicago Bulls.

New Jersey coach Larry Brown, whose UCLA team was beaten by Ainge and BYU in the NCAA playoffs last spring, was impressed with the rookie's debut.

"It's in the best interest of the league to have Danny playing, but it's not in the best interest of the league to have him play in Boston," Brown said. "We certainly would have taken him in the draft, but he convinced me, as well as everyone else, he was going to play out his contract with Toronto."

The league should have had a special draft for him."
